18-year old juvenile hall escapee picked up in Arkansas

Yolo County District attorney will decide whether 20-year old friend will face criminal charges

■ Only one youth from Feb. 2 juvenile hall jailbreak remains at large

By Steve Marschke

18-year old Ronnie Prince of West Sacramento is back in custody after being arrested by Arkansas police Wednesday. Prince was one of nine young men who injured a guard during a mass escape from the Yolo County Juvenile Hall near Woodland last month, and had evidently fled to Arkansas with friend Rachel Gates, 20, also of West Sacramento.

Prince was arrested at gunpoint without incident by police in Fayettville, Arkansas. Authorities had known that Gates might be with him; she was reported to have left her home shortly after receiving a phone call which apparently upset her the evening of Prince's escape, and was known to be close to Prince.

The break for police came when Gates applied for a job in Arkansas and listed a previous job in the Yolo County area as a reference. When he prospective employers at Campbell's Soup in Arkansas called the car dealership for a routine employment check, the dealership's employees (who had been alerted to the situation) tipped off police.

Her employment application also listed her uncle address in Arkansas.

Prince and his uncle were stopped while driving by police toting shotguns.

Prince had been sentenced for robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and weapons charges at the time of his escape. He now faces, at the bare minimum, charges for escape and may be implicated in the beating of the juvenile hall guard, said Lt. Del Hanson of the Woodland Police Department.

"He has waived extradition," Hanson said. "We'll send a couple of officers to pick him up and bring him back."

Police believe Gates is still in Arkansas, and she may face charges as well if the District Attorney finds her responsible for aiding Prince's flight.

"She was there, but not taken into custody," said Hanson. "The D.A. will decide whether she will face charges."

West Sacramento youth Juan Garcia remains at large from the escape.

Nationwide hunt for girl's identity ends in West Sac

■ Girl identified as local; mother had assumed she was with friends

By Steve Marschke

A nationwide search for the identify of a 13-year old girl found dead along the West Sacramento riverfront has ended. The girl has been identified as Jennifer Lynn Osborne of West Sacramento.

The girl's mother, a resident of Pine St. in West Sacramento, told police she had not seen her daughter since Jan. 21, but had assumed she was "hanging out with friends," said Det. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department.

The county coroner has determined that Osborne had died from a lethal dose of methamphetamines, a drug commonly known as "crank."

Police had sent a computer-reconstruction of her image, created from autopsy photos, across the country as part of their search for her identity. Despite tips coming in from coast to coast, the break finally came when an inmate at Yolo County's jail saw the image on a television news broadcast and thought she knew the girl.

Osborne's identity was verified from family photos and from dental records. One family photo showed her wearing the same necklace and cross found on her body, said Detective Bowler. The girl had been a student in the local school district until about a year ago.

Police believe she overdosed by accident, and was probably placed in a riverfront garbage can by friends who panicked after her death. She was found by fishermen on Feb. 16.

Police are now searching for those who may have been involved in her death, and ask anyone with information to call Det. Bowler or Detective Sgt. Mayoral at 373-5870.

Three challengers join race for two city council seats

The filing period has closed for West Sacramento city council candidates interested in running the the June election for two available seats. Both incumbents have refiled, as have three challengers.

In the running are:

■ Mayor Wes Beers, who first won election in the 1990 election and was voted to the mayor's seat last year during the council's informal rotation of that title among its members. Beers, 41, is a bureau chief with the state department of social services and lives on Sharon Ct.

■ Roland Hensley, a retired businessman and Park Blvd. and current city council incumbent, who won election in 1992 to fill out the remainder of the council term vacated by Michael McGowan when McGowan won election to the county board of supervisors.

■ Challenger Randy Cheek, a transportation coordinator with the state who lives on Delaware Ave.

■ Christopher Cabaldon, a Meadow Rd. resident who works as a higher education policy coordinator with the state legislature. Cabaldon is a first-time candidate.

■ Sandra O'Rourke, a legal secretary and May St. resident who is also a challenger.

The five will vie for the two seats on the five-person board currently held by Beers and Hensley.

Williams files, Carter doesn't

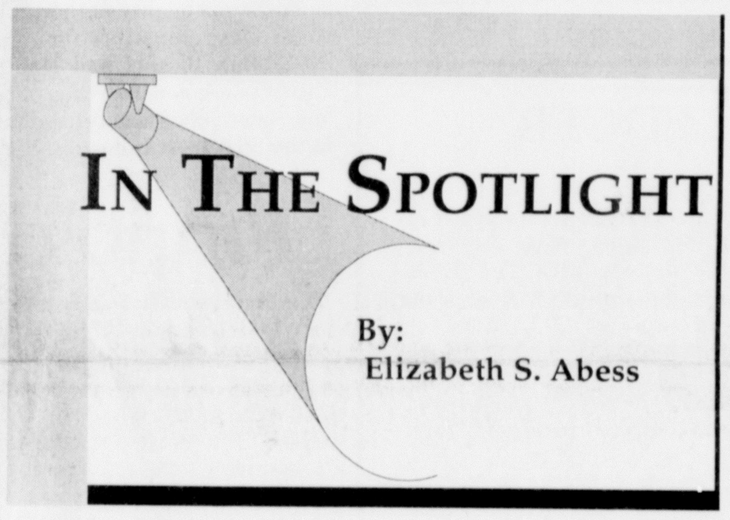
A place where shoes don't go by the pair. . .



By:
Elizabeth S. Abess

They say the human body is not symmetrical, that we all have, say one leg longer than the other, one shoulder higher than the other, or perhaps one foot bigger than the other. Most of us never notice or have to deal with these "inequalities." Some people, however, have to deal with them in a big way...which leads us to the story of The One Shoe Crew.

The One Shoe Crew (TOSC) is a completely volunteer organization, founded by Georgia M. Hehr, that makes "mis-mates" available for people who have different size feet, or perhaps only one foot that needs fitting.

There are a variety of reasons a person would need mis-mates, such as Polio survivors, those born with a clubfoot, stroke victims, and amputees, to name a few. Georgia, in fact, first injured her foot when it ws run over by a wheelchair. Two toes were broken, but they did not heal because of her Diabetes. There were other complications as well, and she eventually found herself in the costly position of always needing to buy two pair of shoes in order to have one matching set she could wear. "That's when I decided to start my own service," says Georgia, "to match people with their shoe opposites: for a lifetime of saving on the enormous cost of shoes."

It began in her home in 1986, but when it grew to the point that she had shoes in her bedroom, living room, dining room, etc. (up to 4,000 shoes in her house), she realized she needed a facility. Now she warehouses the shoes in a building in West Sacramento, with an inventory of approximately 75,000 shoes!

Where do they come from? Shoe makers, of course. Ever heard of Eddie Bauer, Rockport, Reebok, Bass, Joyce, Selby, Head, Nike, Lands End, or Esprit, to name a few? Manufacturers and retailers frequently end up with mismates in their inventory and nothing to do with them. So they ship them to TOSC, and Georgia and her volunteers sort, label and inventory them, and ultimately match them up to TOSC clients. In fact, Georgia now has a sophisticated data bank to allow her to match up her "clients" with the shoes in inventory, based on their needs and desires. Regarding style, Georgia says, "I try to keep a little bit of everything in stock," from moccasins to hiking boots and everything in between.

Her clients are all over the U.S. and Canada, and there are even some requests from Mongolia, S. Africa, and Peru. To her knowledge, TOSC is currently the only service of its kind in North America. And what a great service they offer. Clients just request the style and sizes they need and TOSC goes to work.

The most incredible part of this whole thing is that they do it for free! Georgia requests a $5 per shoe donation to cover boxes, tape, rubber bands, markers, etc. (and postage if the shoes are to be shipped) and small registration/matching fees, but the rest is a free service to those in need of one shoe or mis-mated shoes. Georgia points out, "All services are free for U.S. Veterans."

The One Shoe Crew has grown into a sizable operation over the past eight years and, as can be imagined, it requires a lot of voluntary support. Currently there are from six to nine people available for Georgia, but she is always in need of additional volunteers. TOSC is also always in need of additional clients. So if you (or someone you know) have a need for mismates, or would like to help match mis-mates with those who need them, contact The One Shoe Crew at 364-SHOE. And remember, if the shoe fits...

Bryte resident George DeMars will face two challengers in supervisor's race this June

There will be two county election races this June, since Davis county supervisor Helen Thomson will be unopposed.

Carolyn Pfanner, a Davis resident, will be challenging incumbent county clerk Tony Bernhard for his post.

And George DeMars, a resident of West Sacramento's Bryte neighborhood (in the city's northwest), will face two challengers. DeMars has held his 3rd district seat since 1978. The district is now shaped to stretch from the northern corner of West Sacramento (where eight percent of the district's voters live) to Woodland (where 92 percent live).

Challenging are Woodland businessman Wally Foster and Woodland attorney Tom Stollard.

"The crux of the thing is they want a Woodland resident representing them," DeMars said of the voters in Woodland.

He added that the district used to be about equally divided between Woodland and West Sacramento voters, before it was drastically redrawn ten years ago.

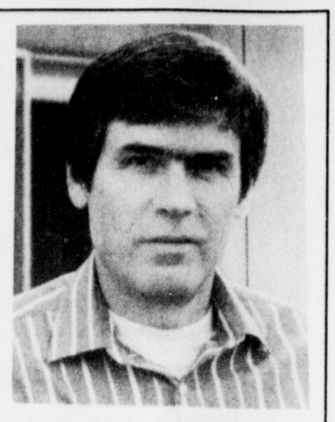
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last night, my wife walked over to me and whispered, "I think you need to have a little talk with your son."

"Which one?" I whispered back, looking up from the book I was reading.

"Paul."

"What did he do — and why are we whispering?"

"You're not going to believe this," she said, shaking her head, "but he took a candy bar from the store and didn't pay for it."

"Paul?" I asked in amazement, sure she meant Ty, my oldest son, who is always getting into some kind of trouble. "How did you find out?"

"Ty squealed on him."

"Why?" I asked suspiciously, knowing that Ty's sense of right and wrong is still — well — in the developmental stages.

"Because Paul refused to share the candy bar with him."

After I had assured my wife that I would take care of the matter, I let my mind wander back to a hot September day in 1961. I was only thirteen years old at the time when me and one of my best friends — who shall remain nameless because he still lives in West Sacramento and is a respected member of the community — decided to go into downtown Sacramento and do some early Christmas shopping at the old Payless store on K Street. We also decided that since we didn't have any money we could spare, we weren't going to pay for anything.

The plan we came up with made so much sense when we first concocted it, but things quickly turned sour. For starters, the full-length black trench coats we were wearing (we looked so cool!) seemed to draw everyone's unwanted attention to us. My friend had suggested we would need them to help hide and haul all of our loot, but it was a hundred-degree day and by the time we walked into the store, we were definitely over-dressed and sweating like pigs.

As we went from aisle to aisle and slyly collected makeup compacts, bottles of inexpensive perfume and other potential Christmas gifts, my friend and I were beginning to clank with our every step, so we decided it was time to call it a day and head on home. It wasn't until we had taken a few steps out of the store that we realized our plan had a few holes in it.

Two burly men in suits grabbed us and unceremoniously yanked us back into the store. Then they rushed us up a flight of stairs and deposited us in chairs in a tiny little room where they had been watching our every move through big sheets of two-way glass. They made us empty our pockets — which took a while — and admit that we were low-life potential gangsters.

"And now you get to take a little ride down to the police station," announced one of the gleeful men in suits as the box of caramel corn I had had for lunch began to work its way up into my throat.

With everyone for blocks around watching as we were handcuffed and loaded into the back of a police car, I swore to my friend that my life of crime was officially over — forever. "And my dad is going to kill me!" I added.

A burly police officer with a huge, shiny gun strapped to his side escorted me into the police station and took me down this long hallway to get fingerprinted. When that humiliating experience was over, I was herded down another hallway and shoved into a holding cell with some of the meanest looking men I had ever seen in my life. The one with the most tatoos seemed to take an immediate liking to me and strolled over and put his colorful arm around my shoulder. There wasn't a doubt in my mind he was a mass murderer of young boys about my age.

"So, what'd they get you for, sonny?" he asked me, his voice almost as hard as the expression on his bearded face.

"Well," I finally managed to get out, "I — I stole a bottle of Aqua Velva."

The whole place exploded in laughter and I quickly found myself a little corner of the cell where I could be left alone with my thoughts, none of which were very comforting.

And then, about thirty minutes later, the worst part of the whole day happened. My dad, with tears in his eyes, showed up to take me home. His disappointment in me was so obvious and so complete that he didn't even have to verbalize it.

"This is never to happen again — ever — do you understand?" he finally said as he drove me over the old "I" Street bridge and back into West Sacramento. I nodded my head yes and mercifully, the subject was never brought up again.

"Paul!" I yelled, "Get your butt in here!"

"I guess Mom told you, huh?" he asked as he reluctantly made his way over to me.

"That sweet tooth of yours is going to be the death of you yet, you know that?"

"I'm sorry — really."

"What in the world were you thinking, anyway?" I asked him.

"I don't know. It won't happen again. I promise."

"Well, you better make sure it doesn't! Not only are you on restriction, but you also better hope I don't start writing this column again, because your little candy crime is going to be the first thing I talk about."

He nodded his head and sighed with relief, obviously confident that the management of the News-Ledger wasn't about to let his father start popping off in their newspaper again.

Paper plant gets permit from air district

On March 3, the Yolo-Solano Air Quality Management District issued the air quality authority to construct permits for the MacMillan Bloedel and Haindl Papier newspaper recycling plant and cogeneration facility to be built in the Southport Industrial Park in West Sacramento. "This is the culmination of a two and a half year effort by staff and consultants to evaluate the impact this project may have on the district's air quality," stated Ken Selover, air pollution control officer.

"We believe that all potential air pollution sources have been indentified and evaluated, and that any negative impacts have been mitigated."

The project will consist of a recycled newsprint facility, which will produce newsprint material from recycled newspapers, magazines, and white office waste paper, and a cogeneration plant to provide process steam and electricity.

The cogeneration plant will supply electric power and steam for the newsprint facility's internal use.

Four arrested at checkpoints

West Sacramento police, assisted by members of the Woodland and Davis police, CHP, Sacramento Sheriff's Department, the Department of Justice and the Drug Enforcement Agency, hosted a series of "sobriety checkpoints" on West Sacramento streets during a six hour stretch on the night of March 12.

1,303 vehicles were stopped, according to the police. Six drivers were given field sobriety tests and four were arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. Two people were arrested for outstanding warrants.

City of West Sac to offer free classes in backyard composting

The city of West Sacramento is sponsoring four free backyard composting workshops on March 19, 23 and 26. Participants will receive a free composting bin and learn how to convert their organic waste — such as yard clippings and kitchen scraps — into valuable compost which can help improve the texture and fertility of their garden soil. Registration forms are included in the March refuse bills. Last fall, over 130 residents participated in the backyard composting workshops.

State law mandates that all cities in California reduce the amount of waste they send to landfills by 25% by 1995 and 50% by the year 2000. In West Sacramento, approximately 30% of household wastes going to the landfill consists of grass, leaves, and food waste. All of these materials are readily compostable. Wouldn't you prefer to see your garden grow rather than the landfills?

For questions or registration information, contact the city recycling coordinator, Jill Holbert, at 373-5810.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

State offices may well be on their way to West Sac

It's probably a bluff, but it's a pretty good bluff.

West Sacramento officials, with the approval of the city council, have donned warpaint and sent smoke signals across the river -- "If the state and Sacramento don't cooperate in sending West Sacramento some of the state's future state office projects, who knows what we might do. . ."

The threat, thinly veiled, is to gum up the works with litigation, preventing new state office development in Sacramento from going ahead in a timely fashion.

And it's a threat West Sacramento is probably not willing to follow through on -- but it has caught everyone's attention.

The result might be a compromise; a few meaty bones thrown this way across the river. New state legislation may soon be approved to send a couple of office projects to this side of the river.

Would this legislation have happened if West Sacramento had been content to play "Mr. Nice Guy," losing the office competition battle with grace?

No, definitely not. Sometimes the only way to be taken seriously is to show a little muscle.

On the other hand, is West Sacramento being reasonable in its urgent pursuit of state office sites?

Not entirely. The city formed in 1987, famous for its industrial base and a seedy downtown. The new city leadership, backed by a majority of the population, voted to pursue this industrial image during the Southport Industrial Park battle of 1990. A disproportionate amount of city effort was spent on this single project, which still remains undeveloped.

Now, the leadership wants instant respect as a site for quality office development along the river. True, the city has come up with a good plan for the riverfront during the past couple of years, but has their truly been time to lay the groundwork necessary for large-scale office development?

If West Sacramento is given a couple of state office sites such as the Department of Consumer Affairs headquarters and California Highway Patrol headquarters, will it have sold out for the right price, or will something better come down the pike in a few years?

Can the West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency meet the challenges necessary to make the riverfront a success if it gets what it wishes: a couple of new office complexes?

To date, the redevelopment agency has not had a major coup, and the city has too often leaped before it looked, ending up with acres of barren, city-owned property and redevelopment projects ringed with angry neighbors and crippled by rising costs.

New state offices would certainly be a boon to West Sacramento; the question is, is West Sacramento truly ready?

'Entrenched opposition' required drastic measures from WUSD

by Hal Williams
Board President, WUSD

The Washington Unified School District has just gone through a very difficult time. Changes had to be made, there always will be those opposed to any change, no matter how necessary or how constructive it may be for our community. As your elected representative, it was and is my duty to fight for the welfare of our children.

It would have been much easier and much more pleasant to have been "Mr. Nice Guy." Unfortunately, the entrenched opposition was dedicated to taking care of themselves and their cronies instead of the best interests of our kids! This forced me to be much more confrontational than I would have preferred.

With the decks cleared, the board has been able to reach a number of consensus decisions with our new superintendent. As he gradually assumes control and brings his priorities to the board, our school board meetings will continue to be much more pleasant for all concerned.

My priorities are as follows:

1. From this day forward, I intend to fully support our new leadership team s they work to improve the Washington Unified School District's curricular offerings, employee welfare, and student attendance and performance.

2. Work with the new administration to provide a safer learning environment for our children. This will necessitate improved security and supervision to elminate drugs, weapons, and gangs from all our schools.

3. Pursue the building of a new elementary school for the Southport area. Southport Homeowners, within the Mello-Roos district, have been paying toward this for years and we are now busing in excess of three hundred children from this area to other district schools.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks

I am writing to publicly thank Dr. Kimball Salmon for his outstanding service to WUSD during its change of administration. I personally appreciated his positive outlook and supportive attitude. From his first board meeting in January, he had enthusiastically voiced his support for the outstanding staff and programs in our schools. He has encouraged board members to look at test scores as just one small measure of the progress being made in our schools. He invited them to see first-hand what happens after the school bell rings each day. And he has maintained this attitude throughout the time he has served our community — not only as interim superintendent, but also as interim assistant superintendent, interim director of personnel, and interim coordinator of child welfare and attendance. Dr. Salmon commented during his farewell remarks last night that he should have had a rotating hat to wear to show which interim position he was serving during each meeting or endeavor in our district. As he made these remarks with what seems to be a boundless supply of good nature, I was saddened to say goodbye to such a genuninely kind person, and saddened even more to once again realize just how much of Washington Unified School District's infrastructure has been decimated by the actions of the board majority.

Some of the wounds will hopefully heal soon, under the guidance of Dr. David Miller, our new superintendent, and the new administrative staff which he assembles. Other wounds go much deeper, and affect more than the district's capability to conduct daily business. These are the wounds of mistrust, discouragement, and misunderstanding.

I hope we can all follow Dr. Kimball Salmon's example and focus on the education of our children with a kind heart and a hopeful enthusiasm.

Congrats

Congratulations to the RCHS Drama Department on your moving production of A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS! The settings, lighting, and costumes gave a professional appearance; the direction was "transparent"; the performances impressive.

James Thomas, Andradi Nillalobos, and Michael Wood deserve special recognition for their masterful delivery; Raquel de la Paz for her appeal; Anthony Vindetti for his versatility.

Mr. Engoron, thank you for another fine effort...we're looking forward to your next production, LOVE LETTERS, in the fall!

Housing

An article entitled "Housing Honcho" in the March 3 Neighbors section of The Sacramento Bee leaves me puzzled. It described the role of the Martha J. Lewis, the chairwoman of the West Sacramento Housing Advisory Commission. Ms. Lewis is also the vice-president of the Southport Homeowners Association, which was initially organized to fight the city's plan to set aside 28 new homes in the Southport area for a Shared Equity Program.

Ms. Lewis says she realized the power of community involvement when the Southport Homeowners were successful in reducing the number of homes available from 28 to 8. Strangely enough, she feels she accomplished something worthwhile in blocking the efforts of 20 families to move into a nice neighborhood because "it boiled down to how are these going to be supervised and managed." It is my understanding that these were individual homes which would be subsidized by the government in much the same way as FHA or VA. People would have to meet specified loan requirements but have a financial subsidy to provide assistance in today's outrageous real estate market.

I have asked this question before and I'm asking it again. Why in the world do these families need any supervision and management? Do people that have VA loans need management? Do people that borrowed down payment money from dad or Aunt Tessie need management? If they had to start over again, millions of people that bought their homes 20 years ago would be priced out of today's market. Does that mean all these people that have maintained their homes and yards in excellent condition for many years would need "supervision and management" to meet the criteria of the Southport Homeowner's Association? In short, who died and made them God?

As a Southport resident myself, married to a man who was born and raised in Broderick, I see this as a classic case of people who manage to get a foot up and are willing to reach down and give the other guy a similar boost. It is a childish game of drawing a circle to keep others out. At best, it appears to be discrimination based on perceived social or economic status. At worst, it is discrimination based on "redlining" or an organized effort to keep minority families out of a neighborhood.

Don Amegin, president of the Southport Homeowners Association, is quoted as saying that Ms. Lewis "bases her conclusions on the facts and good common sense." I can't help wondering why the reporter specifically sought out his opinion as she is supposed to represent all the citizens of West Sacramento. It is not suprizing that he would fee this way about his own V.P. but as chairwoman of a city commission? Isn't this a rather obvious conflict of interests?

As past coordinator of the Yolo County Fair Housing Program and after twenty years of investigating discrimination complaints (fair housing and patient rights), I have developed a pretty good nose for sniffing out subtle discrimination. The residents backing the Maple/Holly Steering Committee have some serious and legitimate concerns about low-income housing that genuinely need to be addressed. But even the thought of the Southport Homeowners Assocation, dubbed by my husband as SHA (Superior Humans Anonymous)...makes my nose start to twitch.

Drama

The News-Ledger's publicity for the River City Drama Department's play was most generous; it helped make the Friday night ABC party night a sell-out. The parents, alumni of the Thespians, and the community are to be thanked for their support of the staff and the students who worked so hard to give us a great night of theater.

Special thanks goes to the Safeway in West Sacramento, it's manager and cake decorator who provided the celebration cake. The play depends on cooperation from River City staff, all the office staff and the principal, as well as the Yolo High staff. ABC becomes a camel in the tent and the way is made easy for ABC. It isn't just that all the staff is helpful; we find that they make the common saying "no problem" an accurate description of their assistance and support. Finally, we hope that the taxpayers can see that their money is being used to give so many young people an opportunity to develop their talents. Some of these experiences lead graduates into related occupations (the banners donated by an alumnus represent a career in art in San Francisco) and give the students the disciplinary, organizational, and public presentation skills needed for as unrelated careers as engineering. Lisa Parker, who acted as master of ceremonies for us, now a practicing mechancial engineer, is one of those.

A final thank you to the dedicated faculty member Roy Engoron, who give the challenge to the students and brings out the professional performances.

The Ad Hoc Steering Committee for the Arts Boosters Club is: Betty Sokolich; John Siden; Grace Ohlson; Don Bosley; and Carolyn Vendetti. Alumni are Lisa Stinchfield-Parker and Elizabeth Gamez. Students include Tony Vendetti; Angela Cardoza; Elizabeth Pond; Melissa Hensley; and Stephanie Silva.

Rate hikes

At the end of the March 9 meeting of the West Sacramento City Council, a manager/owner of some apartments complained that the commercial water rates charged units like his were proportionately many times higher than residential units on a per-gallon-used basis. He pleaded that he and those "in his shoes" could not survive (financially speaking) unless the rates were modified as requested.

While the request to lower apartment water rates sounds logical on the surface, some questions come to mind: (1) Are we talking flat rates or metered rates? (2) Will such reductions trigger increases in residential rates (to stabilize city water revenue)? (3) And will any of these allegedly high costs of water — in reduced — be passed on the tenants in the form of reduced rent? Or perhaps some of such savings should be passed on to first-time apartment renters (from 2 months' rent up front to 1 1/2 months' worth).

Such positive action on this last point would break down the barrier for most low-income folks now financially trapped in our out-of-date West Capitol Ave. motels ($500 or so for rooms without stove or refrigerator!) allowing slight first-month and more significant subsequent monthly savings therefrom. Nor can one discount the value of a more stable address; i.e., not having to jump from one address to another for monetary or other reasons. (So, again; if our motel friends want to be treated like apartments, their monthly rates should be more like that of comparable apartments and their motel signs should come down!) To offset such anticipated lost revenue: Since most motel owners appear to be from the same family, they are probably of the same religious persuasion and could probably legally operate those motels from the vantage point of a "non-profit organization" and not pay any income taxes).

From lower multi-residential rates (Sacramento charges the same for 10 two-bedroom homes as for a 10-unit apartment complex of 2 bedrooms each) for water to more affordable and motel units...sounds worth exploring.

Finally, since being homeless has become a crime, our lawmakers should revise laws so that those receiving public assistance monies who do not pay their rent — or pay too much rent — should have their monthly check managed by non-profit groups such as L.I.F.E., Inc. or Loaves & Fishes.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento river registered 3 feet 1 inch, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

J. S. Lear returned from Diamond last Tuesday where he had been engaged all summer with the California Lumber Co. He expects to stay a few days and may possibly return to install the new machinery in a new mill that is about to be built by the corporation. If he decides he will do that he will leave in a few days to return to the foothills to finish the work.

L. Speicher came home from Hilt last Monday after spending the summer in lumbering in the mountains. A successful season, he claims, was the result of the lumbering company this year.

Mrs. William Wilson and Mrs. E. A. Palm came home yesterday after spending the past week at Richardson Springs. They claim to have been greatly benefited by the springs and came home with Mr. Palm in the family auto.

Ed. Peake and wife, with Mrs. Lottie Miller and her two children, have returned from Samuel Springs where they spent last week on a vacation.

Professor Case of the Washington public school is authority for the statement that the average attendance at the present time is 284 children, with only seven teachers in the school and no extra teachers for mechanics, agriculture, agronomy or other fads that form a part of the curriculum of the Sacramento schools. With this average attendance the Washington public school is entitled to nine teachers and any extras that the school trustees might see fit to add.

Word has been received from George Beale that he has landed again in the United States and will be home in a few weeks. At the present time he is visiting friends and relatives in Pennsylvania and several other eastern points.

Mrs. J. Baglin with her son, Edward, left this morning to spend a few days with friends and relatives in San Jose.

Judge Barry is bragging about the peaceful condition of Washington, having had not a single case this week, not even a bootlegger or a Chinaman. He asserts there isn't another similar town in Yolo County or in any county of the State of California with such a record.

The road gang of the Southern Pacific Co. has completed the crossing at Third street, near the end of the bridge, and no doubt this will be appreciated by auto drivers during the coming winter. During several years the rails at this crossing looked mountain high to autoists who knew their tires had a weak spot in them. Now no rails stick up to decorate the crossing and a splendid smooth surface is a help to travelers.

J. G. Soule and wife returned from Richardson Springs last Sunday, after spending two weeks at the popular resort. They were both greatly benefited by their vacation.

Yesterday evening two Fords came together at the crossing at the end of the bridge when Doctor F. P. Pratt of Seattle, confused by the various signs, got somewhat out of his right of way and collided with M. Ramos of Riverbank. Both Fords were slightly damaged but none of the occupants of the two cars were injured. Probably the entire damage to both cars will not amount to more than $15.00.

The dance held last Saturday night in the town hall was another big success, following the one of the previous Saturday night. These dances will be continued during the winter season, affording much entertainment to the young folks who indulge in this pastime. Nobody has found fault with these dances, but yet the fear is expressed that some of the reformers may try to prevent them so that the Sabbath may not be violated.

Complaint was made to Constable Buckingham yesterday by Mrs. M. M. Teixeira that a hay baling crew working in her neighborhood in West Sacramento had given whiskey to her little boy, who is only seven years old. Mrs. Teixeira had gone to the Igo Hospital in Sacramento to visit her husband, who is confined there with a broken back, and during her absence in a spirit of mischief the hay baling crew gave the boy the intoxicant. On arriving at her home she administered proper medicine to the child and relieved him of the dangerous liquid.

Constable Buckingham spent some time yesterday running down a miscreant in the southern portion of town and in the West Sacramento district, who had attempted to commit rape on a little Portuguese girl of six years. He failed to accomplish his purpose, luckily, and residents in the neighborhood were out looking for him last night, but evidently he had made good his escape. Other small children in the neighborhood had pointed him out as the man who had invited them to view his camp near the M street bridge, and while some had gone a part of the way with him none of them had gone far enough for the fiend to accomplish his purpose. It will not go well with this individual if any of the parents of the locality find him and identify him as the man who had tried to commit the deed.

The Blue Bird Inn is quietly going along attending to its business with a number of Chinese holding down the hostelry under a lease granted to them by the owner of the property. White men or boys have not been permitted to enter the place, so that it is unknown to any of the neighbors what the Chinese are doing in the building. As a matter of fact, none of the residents of Riverbank or in the neighborhood of the inn have worried their brains about the Chinese who have leased the property.

Mrs. Sarah Evans has returned from Oakland, where she attended a birthday party given in honor of her son. Eighteen members of the family were present, including the two great-granddaughters of Mrs. Evans, whom she saw on this occasion for the first time.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peterson of Texas, who have been visiting the former's brother, J. N. Peterson, have left for Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graft returned to their home in Ukiah after visiting relatives in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Todhunter of Represa are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Todhunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hildebrand of Confidence are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hart.

Mrs. John Douglass of Hollister was a guest yesterday at the home of Mrs. I. K. Manchester.

Mrs. Bert Erwin and daughter of Santa Rosa are visiting at the home of H. B. Buckingham, father of Mrs. Erwin.

CHINESE WILL MOVE FROM ANNE STREET TO PROPERTY SOUTH OF MARGARET STREET NEAR M STREET BRIDGE

The Hauser property on Ann street will be vacated by the Chinese who have had leases on those places of business during the past two months and will erect their own buildings on land located on Second street, south of Margaret street.

In that locality the Chinese have secured a lease from the Harbinson and O'Connor estates covering half a block of ground, and on that ground they will erect their own buildings. The contract for the buildings has already been let in the amount of $15,000.00.

The plans for the building include a large central structure around which will be arranged twelve smaller houses all facing the central structure with the backs completely enclosed and facing east or west, as the case may be.

Concerning leases that were reported to have been held by the Chinese on the Hauser holdings on Anne street, it is now reported that those leases were not bonded and that since public sentiment seemed to have driven them out of the community they cannot be held responsible for rentals they promised to pay for the leases extended to them by the property owners.

The Chinese are not bashful about saying that Fred Hauser has been a good deal to blame for the antipathy expressed towards them by the people of Washington on account of his overbearing demeanor to the people of the town.

Several of the places rented by the Chinese are now closed in anticipation of the move above mentioned, and there is one thing that the Chinese insist on after they have moved from their present location is police protection in their precinct, without interference from other property owners in the community.

The property about to be used by the Chinese for their buildings on Second street has been used for many years for farming purposes. To its owners it has brought but little revenue and yet at all times it was considered valuable as an investment, and the Harbinson and O'Connor estates now consider it one of the most valuable pieces of land in this section of the county.

The lease extended on this property to the Chinese conveys an option of purchase within a year, and since there are many native born Chinese included in the company that has leased the land there will be no apparent difficulty in tunring over the land to them when they so express the wish.

It is barely possible that the entire tract extending between Second and Fifth streets and between Margaret street and the railroad embankment may be taken over for industrial purposes by the Chinese, because a "For Sale" sign has been standing on the property for some considerable time past.

What the Chinese intend to do with the building they are about to erect on the property remains to be seen. Whether they gamble there or whether they conduct stores there is known only to themselves, but one thing is certain, they will not permit American boys or men to enter their premises only when permission is granted to them and they show a disposition to treat the orientals in a fair and courteous manner.

The Chinese who are now located on Second street, between Ann and Harriet streets, will also turn over their leases to the property owners when the structure mentioned above is completed on Second street.

It will be seen that several of those property owners will lose considerably by this action of the Chinese, and the quiet and unassuming condition of the town of Washington will be resumed in compliance with the request for reform that prevented the Chinese from pursuing their business as they saw fit.

JAIL TERMS FOR UNPAID FINES ARE LIMITED BY COURT

Violators of the Volstead act can be fined $500 on conviction, but they cannot be kept in jail for more than six months on failure to pay, the District Court of Appeal ruled Monday in a decision handed down on an appeal perfected by A. Brenta of Napa County.

Brenta sought to escape jail by protesting jurisdiction of the Superior Court in which he was tried. The District Court affirmed his conviction, but ordered him released at the end of six months.

The lower court fined Brenta $500 and sent him to jail when he couldn't pay, promising him credit of $2 a day. The District Court in its decision automatically raised the credit to almost $3 a day.

BIDS FOR GRADING OF ROAD TO FREEPORT ASKED

The board of supervisors of Yolo are advertising for bids to be received on October 16th for the grading of the public highway from the south line of Reclamation District No. 307 along the crest of the levee to Freeport.

This road has been raised to the required grade for a greater part of the way during the past summer and it is the intention of the supervisors to build a concrete road thereon as soon as the grading contract above mentioned will be completed.

PROBATION GRANTED TO LOCAL RESIDENT FOUND IN POSSESSION OF WEAPON

Charles Merander, alien, who plead guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, won probation Monday owing to his past good record and the fact that the law which makes the offense a felony is a new one. In granting probation, Judge C. O. Busick stated he is doubtful whether such leniency is intended by the law, but that he was willing to assume the responsibility in this case. Merander was carrying a slungshot as a means of protection while going to Yolo County at 3 o'clock in the morning. He is employed there as a milker.

It is no wonder that the boy was heard cursing his foretathers.
See what Adam did for him.

COMPLETION OF ROAD MAY MEAN BRIDGE OVER THE RIVER AT ELKHORN

Woodland, Oct. 5.—There was a real jollification among county officials and road builders at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two and a half miles east of the Woodland city boundary on the east and extending to Elkhorn on the river road to Sacramento. Supervisor L. E. Hutchings served ice cream and passed around the cigars among the members of a road construction crew, which, under the management and direction of County Engineer Asa G. Proctor, completed the last inch of improved highway in Supervisoral District No. 4, represented by Supervisor Hutchings, as promised under the $1,000,000 county highway bond issue.

The strip completed yesterday measured two and a half miles and cost approximately $47,500. It was done by day labor by the county and the job was superintended by Proctor.

There are now ten miles of improved county highway in Supervisor District No. 4, including two and a half miles on the Woodland-Knights Landing road and five miles on the Woodland-Madison road. The completion of the last link yesterday was gratifying to the supervisor of the district and particularly to the county surveyor's department through which the work was done.

The seven and a half miles from here to Madison and Knights Landing cost $2,000 more per mile than the eastern extension of Main street road, making the cost per mile there $21,000. The total money spent out of the highway bond issue in Supervisor District No. 4 now amounts to approximately $205,000, according to the figures of Proctor.

Other districts have not fared so well. There is much road construction to be done yet, but the bond issue was exhausted a year and half ago, says Proctor, so that all new work being done now is under yearly budget raised by the supervisors through taxation.

Woodland, Oct. 9.—Yolo county supervisors yesterday inspected the proposed site of a bridge at Elkhorn, there meeting the supervisors from Sacramento County.

DEDICATION OF CLARKSBURG NEW SCHOOL BUILDING CELEBRATED

Clarksburg, Oct. 6.—Lester Hinsdale, Sacramento attorney and one of the first pupils of the "old Clarksburg school house on the hill," returned to the little township to help dedicate a new $75,000 school building. Hinsdale reminisced of other days.

Miss Harriet S. Lee, Yolo County school superintendent, and J. D. Mendenhall, president of the Holland Land Company, were other speakers. G. O. Frazier, chairman of the Clarksburg Board of Education, presided over the dedication meeting.

Miss Helen Stewart, county rural school music supervisor, was heard in song, accompanied by Miss Helen Bragg, pianist.

The flag raising, with 170 pupils giving a salute, was the opening feature. The school faculty includes Mrs. Ethel Martell, Mrs. Pearl Conner, Miss Hazel Brown and Miss Lillian Schwartz.

An audience of 160 farmers and their wives, parents, relatives or friends of the pupils enjoyed the dedication exercises.

Artist Buzz Holmes leads parents and instructors through program at Westmore

From the Washington Unified School District

On Saturday, March 12, Washington Unified School District teachers, instructional aides, and parents were led by Dwight "Buzz" Holmes through an exciting program of art and music activities which were integrated with language arts.

The library at Golden State Middle School, where the workshop was held, was cluttered with Orff and rhythm instruments of all kinds, grey, pink, green, and blue construction paper, and other art materials as thirty excited staff members and parents responded to the guidance of the talented and energetic presenter.

Participants not only benefited from the activities which were directed by Mr. Holmes but also presented their original performances to the group for immediate application of their new skills. Each participant received a notebook of materials at the conclusion of the workshop.

This was a return visit to West Sacramento for Mr. Holmes. He was the featured artist on the final day of the Preschool Staff Development Institute held in June 1993 at Bryte Elementary School. The institute was organized through the "It's Elementary" Alliance and involved teachers from Washington Unified, North Sacramento, Woodland, and Elk Grove. Mr. Holmes is currently coordinator of fine arts and music in the Idyllwild School District and a member of the California School Leadership Academy. His experience in education, visual and performing arts, and community organizations is extensive and spans the generations, having worked in assignments as varied as the Elderhostel Program, youth choirs, and programs for preschool teachers. He has worked for the Los Angeles Unified School District, the University of Southern California, and Wilde Woods Music in Palm Springs, written for professional journals, and served as a school board member.

School trustees thank Dr. Salmon

by John Siden

Trustees of the Washington Unified School District Thursday honored recent district participants in the county's academic decathalon and bade farewell to interim superintendent Kimball Salmon, who left the district Monday after serving since late January.

The academic decathalon, a day-long competition for high school students from the county's five districts, was held at River City High School on February 5. The event generated negative publicity for the school when members of a local service club assailed the condition of the River City campus at an earlier meeting of the board.

But campus conditions took a back seat to student achievement Thursday when mathematics teacher Carol Higgins described the successes of River City decathalon teams and the work required of the students who participated.

Participants who received resolutions from the board included honor team members Sarabh Sharma, Veronica Bigornia and Hoang Truong, scholastic team members Toua Lee, Renee Castro and Kongpheng Nanthavongsa, varsity tema members Jason Hernandez and Louie Garcia and alternates Jayson Gawthorpe and Jennifer Lopez-Turner.

In a light-hearted final report to the board later in the meeting, Salmon wore a hat with rotating titles for the duties he has carried out for the past two months — superintendent, assistant superintendent for curriculum, personnel director and coordinator of pupil personnel services.

Salmon will be replaced as interim superintendent by David Helms until new superintendent David Miller assumes his post full time on March 23.

Exhibit of bells on display

Bells, Bells, Bells, a collection of more than 200 bells gathered from many nations, will be on display at the Yolo County Historial Museum, 512 Gibson Road in Woodland through May 17.

On display are school bells, door bells, cow bells, souvenir bells, church bells, sleigh bells, and Swiss, American, Chinese and Persian bells.

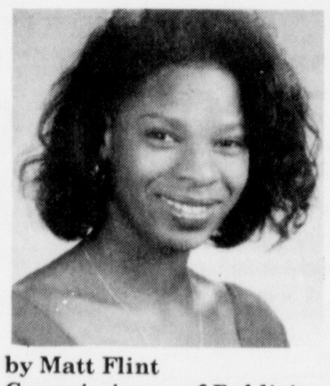
The collection is on loan from Lois Johnson, former executive director of the Woodland Opera House, whose father, the late Claus Johnson, gathered the bells during his career as a mechanical engineer.

Traveling to many countries over 40 years to design and supervise mining equipment, Johnson developed an interest in bells, and began collecting those that caught his attention.

The exhibit will be on display on Mondays and Tuesdays from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. and on Saturdays and Sundays from noon until 4 p.m. Special arrangements for group tours can be made by calling 666-1045.

Danielle Gaines

RCHS student is chosen for Girls State



by Matt Flint
Commissioner of Publicity, RCHS

Danielle Gaines, River City junior, was selected for Girls State this past week. Girls State is a work and study program in functional government. It also teaches women about the business world. Also, Girls State is a widely accepted program and looks exceptionally good on college transcripts. Fifteen applications were sent out but only one girl was chosen from each school.

There were two representatives that came and interviewed Danielle from the California Girls State American Legion Auxiliary. Danielle will be attending the session at Sonoma State from June 15 through June 25. She will be involved in ten days of strenuous studying and activities, including outdoor sports. Danielle feels that this is a great honor to go because she will be representing not only River City but West Sacramento as well.

Danielle is very active at River City. She is involved in CSF, Peer Engineering, ASB secretary, and the Renaissance program.

She currently holds a GPA of 3.86, and also has a part time job at Sacramento Sweets Company in Old Sacramento.
